Resource 3: Honeysuckle Worker Cards

Worker 1

I spend my days in the railway workshops, learning how to repair steam locomotive parts. Experienced tradespeople show me how to use the tools, and I receive wages while completing my trade training.

Worker 2

I make coffees and serve breakfast to people visiting the waterfront. I work three regular morning shifts each week, leaving the rest of my week free for other commitments.

Worker 3

I clean offices, storerooms and shared work areas. I have the same two morning shifts every week, and I make sure the buildings are safe and ready for the people using them.

Worker 4

When large shipments of wool arrive at the harbour stores, the supervisor calls me in to help weigh, stack and move the bales. Some weeks there is plenty of work; other weeks I am not offered any shifts.

Worker 5

I organise inspections, arrange repairs and speak with tenants living in waterfront apartments. I work 38 hours every week for a property management company and receive a regular salary.

Worker 6

Businesses contact me when their buildings need electrical repairs. I bring my own tools, quote for each job and send an invoice when the work is finished. I decide which jobs to accept.

Worker 7

I operate machinery at the railway workshops, helping keep trains and equipment running. I work a regular full working week for the railway department and receive a steady wage.

Worker 8

I design advertisements and websites for businesses based near the waterfront. I am employed by a design company, but I complete most of my work from home and attend meetings online.

Worker 9

Local businesses hire me to move goods between their premises and the waterfront. I arrange each delivery directly with the customer, supply my own transport and charge a fee for each job.

Worker 10

I inspect and grade wool in the harbour stores. Different merchants hire me to assess their shipments, and I negotiate a fee for each job rather than receiving regular weekly wages.

Worker 11

I help set up chairs, equipment and temporary signs for concerts and events along the waterfront. My employer offers me shifts when events are scheduled, but I do not have guaranteed weekly hours.

Worker 12

I supervise a team that maintains buildings, checks equipment and responds to safety problems. I work 38 hours every week for the organisation that operates the site.
